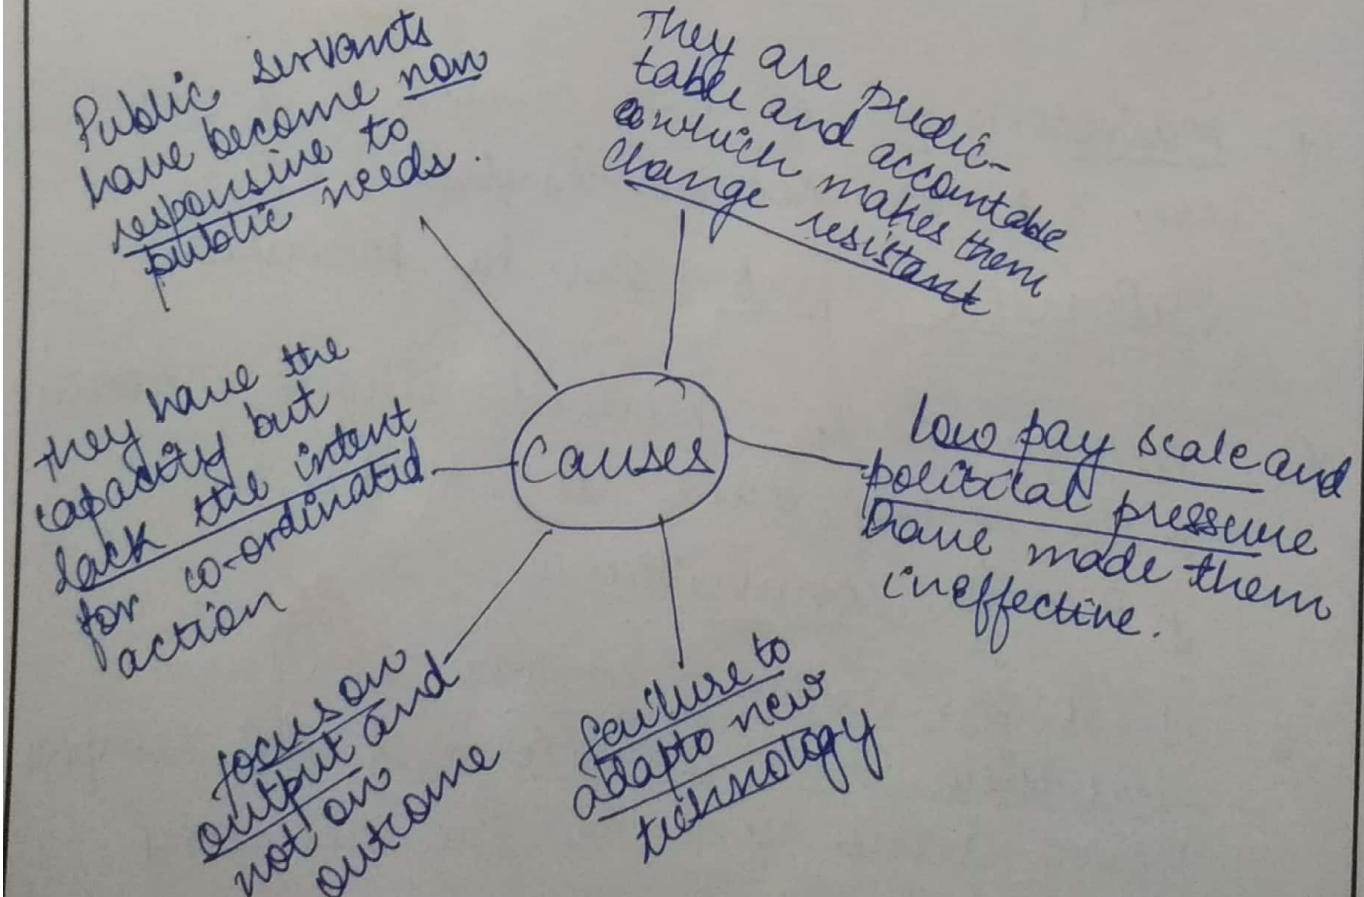
Crisis of Ethics in public life is more because of attitudinal problem of public servants rather than organisational ineffectiveness. Critically analyse (20 M)

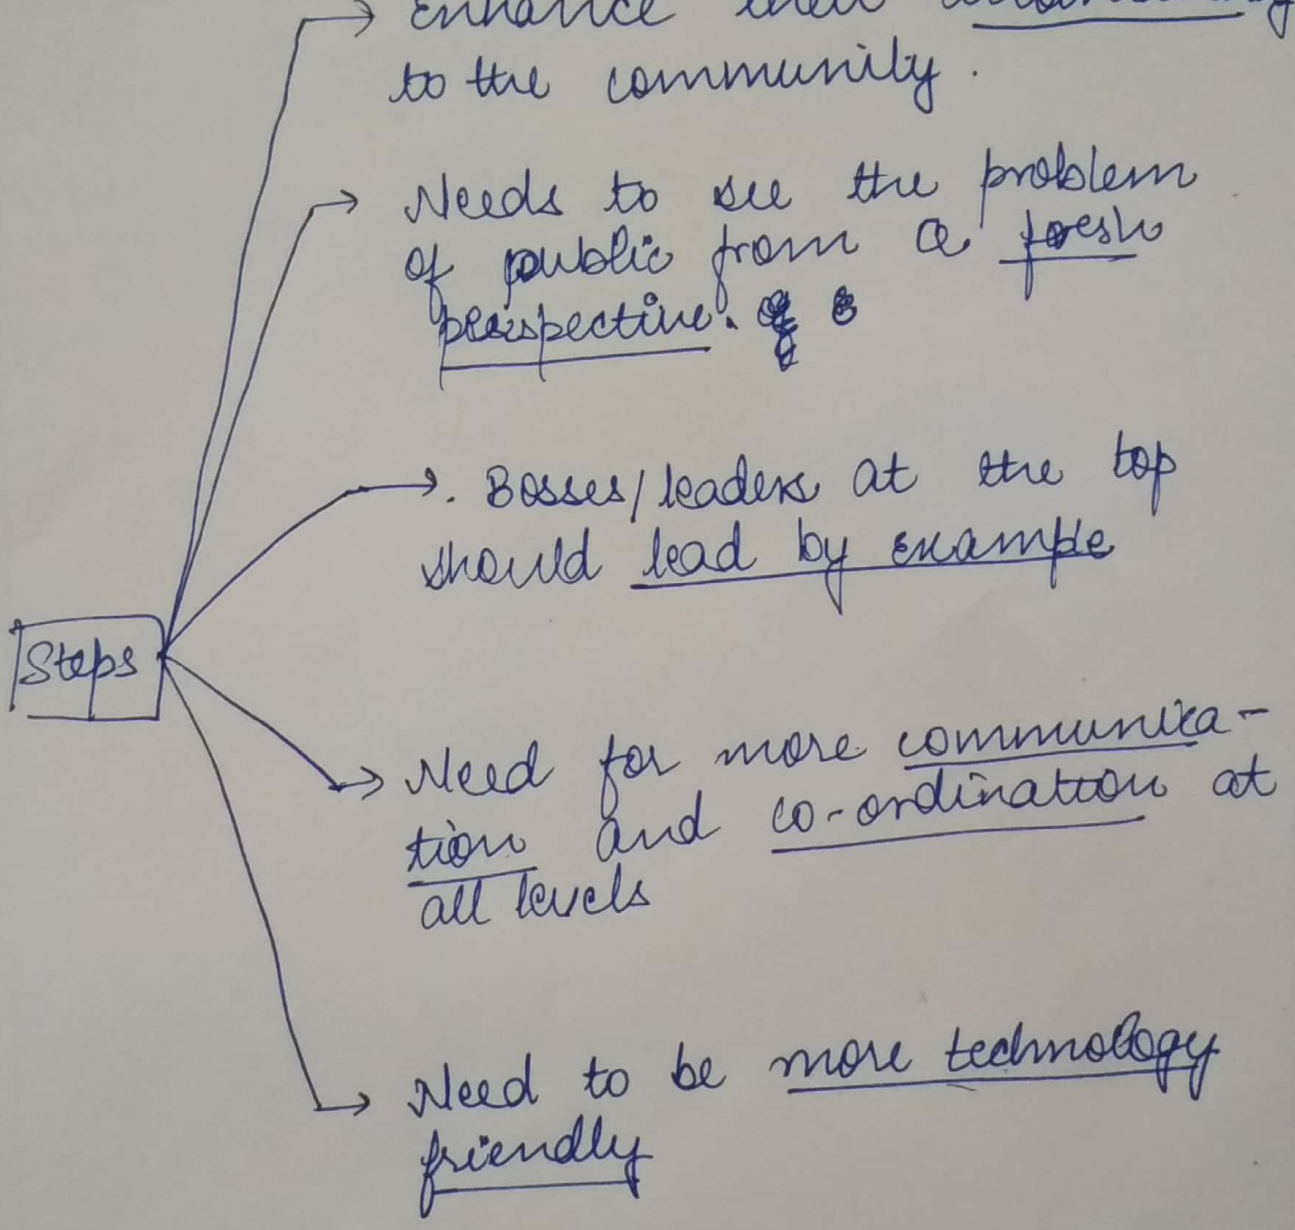
Attitude is the mental disposition, which can be towards a person, an object or an idea. It is formed through personal or social experiences over a period of time. It determines ones behaviour and guides the actions.

Crises of ethics in public life is more because of attitudinal problem of public servants rather than organisational ineffectiveness and reasons for this are:



Scanned by CamScanner

To change the attitude from negative to positive towards ethics in public life. public servants needs to take steps such as:-



Their needs a balanced approach from organisation making policies and civil servants implementing them for a better India.

Scanned by CamScanner